JUDGE BOORSTEIN GOES IN FOR THE FINAL KILL

Boston, Mass – February 9, 2007 – Foxboro resident Dan Iagatta III spent last night in his home of 43 years wondering whether or not it would be his last. If Judge Beverly Boorstein gets her way today and sends the Constable to enforce her inhumane eviction order, Dan’s future is uncertain.

As a C4/C5 quadriplegic, Dan says he did not sleep at all last night. “I just laid there all night wondering how I will survive. Boorstein took my children from me and now she is taking our home. She has tortured me mercilessly for years and now she is going in for the kill.” Dan likens Judge Boorstein to a mercenary.

Dan’s story has caught the attention of several news media and Governor Patrick’s office has been flooded with calls for weeks from people all across the world calling for someone to put a stop to Judge Boorstein’s perverted sense of justice, but the governor told Dan he could only refer him to legal aid services.

Dan filed an emergency motion on Wednesday to stay the eviction order but Judge Boorstein promptly denied his request. In a last-ditch effort, Dan, along with an entourage of supporters, filed a similar motion with Massachusetts Appellate Court yesterday. Dan was granted a temporary stay until 11:00 A.M. EDT today, at which time his attorney will appear to argue on Dan's behalf.

Dan extends his deepest thanks to all for their ongoing support of him and asks that if anyone wants to join him today that they are welcome and encouraged. "I am praying for a miracle," Dan said as he stared at his two sons' picture that hung on the wall.
